MOSS IS AFTER THE GAMBLERS

Broadbrim Reviews the Situation at the Metropolis, and Incidentally Touches On Christmas

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE No. 1583.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The present week is almost within rifle shot of one of the most sacred holidays in all the glad new year. It comes to us like a revelation from on high. Christ is here in the flesh and blood, the combination of the physical with the spiritual, and bearing all the ills that mankind is doomed to know. With us here are all the joys that an anticipated future can give. We weep and He weeps with us; when sorrow comes, and it certainly will come to all, He partakes of our grief. We know He is mortal from the cry He utters. No single man since creation's dawn except Himself has known in its fullness what grief and sorrow and agony combined mean. The tremendous suffering in spite of His spiritual support, reveled with watered eyes, would seem to note absolute and utter failure. He has mounted the rugged sides of Calvary and He carries the cross on which He is to suffer without any aid from His murderers or assassins. The cross is erected and His suffering body is nailed thereon and it is witnessed by thousands who have followed Him along the way of sorrow to the place of execution. They cannot make Him bear a greater agony than that which He now feels and confirms in a sharp, suffering cry. Then is heard that wail which made His Godhead almost doubtful. It is heard around the globe, wherever the sun rises and sets, "My God! My God! why hast Thou forsaken Me." God, His Father, had not forsaken Him. It will live imperishable along with the electric current that girdles the globe; its echoes will roll back from the palaces of kings and startle the listener in the cabins of the poor. The consummation has come at last: the bond of sinful millions is paid to the last letter and the salvation of the sinful race is paid for in the blood of the Lamb.

At the present moment in every portion of the globe where humanity dwells and religion is known there goes a cry of joy on Christmas morning. Joyful millions attest their gladness at this Christmas time. The dear old Santa Clause with his sleigh full of joyful remembrances is one of the earliest harbingers of happiness for those who in due time will fill their places when we have paid the penalty which all mankind owes to God.

While religion has its joyful celebration our political situation demands a more thorough and satisfactory ending. Our mayor elect, the late president of Columbia University, has given notice to the men who placed him in the proud position he holds today that for official preferment no political leader need apply. A howl of disappointment and rage has been heard through the length and breadth of this great city at this edict. To men who up to the present time have served their country and their party well this edict seems like a death warrant. They have won the battle and expect the fruits of their victory. Destroy that hope and you deny the old Roman proverb, "To the victors belong the spoils." There must be a hope and a certainty somewhere. The indulgence in the hope of a purer party where vice should be crushed and virtue triumphant is active in sifting out the wheat from the chaff, and, fearful that the evils in the chaff may possible escape them, they put their new candidates for office through such a drastic examination that it can turn out virtue and dress sin in purple and fine linen.

The most striking sensation all through the week has been from the gamblers, and I take this opportunity to express my obligations. Since the election Judge Jerome has had to give up his pernicious activity, and has had to present his club, his revolver and ax to his late associate, Frank Moss. No better man could have been selected; brave as a lion, for he knows not fear; cunning as a fox, that is prepared for every danger; he is an ideal sleuth hound and an invaluable assistant to a court of justice. There is no means for estimating his money value if you united the fortunes of Andrew Carnegie with that of Rockefeller and Astor. He scents crime while still far off and follows it with the deadly certainty of a bloodhound. The fiercest of the gambling and thieving crew tremble when they hear his name, and would have trod him down last year, if there was any chance of escaping the penalty of their crimes. The raid of this week was a wonderful success. The telephonic connection was between the different police stations and the police captains implicated in protecting gambling and other crimes had no time to notify their friends that the police were coming and their heads and liberty were in danger. The guard in charge of the police office sat serenely at his desk, and, like the Pharasee of old, "Thanks God, that he was not like other men."

Frank Moss in the meantime gathered his trusty henchmen and raided the head gambling den of Al Adams, carefully, carefully guarding every possible avenue of escape. The room was crowded and when the final attack was made by the invaders, one of the wildest scenes ever witnessed in New York occurred as the criminals tried to escape. Whichever way they turned revolvers were in dangerous proximity to their heads, and they cowered before the invaders like a set of whipped curs. Men with revolvers in their hands bade them to be quiet and not attempt to move, or if they did they would be killed on the spot. The men did as they were bidden, while the invaders, with crowbar, ax and jimmy, assisted in breaking open ever safe, drawer and hiding place where the gamblers kept their plunder.

All paraphernalia of the gamblers was mercilessly seized, loaded up on wagons and was carried to Frank Moss' headquarters. Some money was captured—not much—but there was among the loot that which made it worth a prince's ransom. It was a list of telephone connections with a number of police precincts in this city, so that if a raid started from any precinct within the city limits, the gamblers were promptly notified and when the officers of the law arrived they found every saint with a hymn book in his hand singing in the upper register of Barnum's famous calliope, "Hold the Fort For I Am Coming," or "Ninety and Nine in the Fold That Lay." The sight of these innocent lambs engaged in such pious occupation was enough to bring tears from the eyes of a cobbler's lapstone and the wretches who brought false information to headquarters were roundly cursed and a determined promise was given that the vile wretches who were trying to rob honest men of their characters should be hunted down and landed in state's prison if it took ten years to do it.

Time after time when Mr. Moss was going to make a raid and went to the nearest police precinct for assistance, Mr. Moss and his sledge hammer brigade were detained until the officer in charge could learn if it was the proper thing to do.

Back came the answer: "Certainly, give Mr. Moss all the aid he needs and let there be no unnecessary delay."

Now, wasn't that nice? What could be better? The only thing possible that could improve it would be to put Deputy Devery in charge of the raid. It did not take Brother Moss long to realize that up to a certain point he had been as clay in the hands of the potter, so he shook off the dust of police precincts from his brogans and resolved to go it on his own hook.

The result of Mr. Moss' raid has been most satisfactory. The gamblers have fled to New Jersey and started business in Paterson where the girls are stupefied, outraged and murdered—where another honest and industrious young woman was nearly murdered and was finally driven into a lunatic asylum by the infamous persecutions of the people whom she refused to join. Paterson, which is the only city in the United States where anarchy flourishes; the only place that could raise an assassin who after studying his murderous crime for months could make a journey of nearly four thousand miles to assassinate in cold blood a man who had never injured him, the best king that Italy had had in the memory of living men. Let us see what Paterson will do with the thugs, the thieves and gamblers that New York has driven out with ax, revolver, sledge-hammer and crowbar. Speak out, New Jersey, your honor is at stake. What will Paterson do? We watch and wait your answer—what will Paterson do?

SLIPPERY STREETS

Pedestrians and Horses Have Been Having Troubles.

Slippery streets and sidewalks are responsible for many accidents, but fortunately none have proved serious. Although a great many people have fallen no bones have been broken.

Isaac Ralston's big horse slipped and fell at the Pan Handle depot this morning, and it was necessary to remove the harness before it could regain its feet.

Smith & Dawson's delivery wagon had a narrow escape at Main and Hickory. The driver was in a hurry and in turning the corner the horse lost its feet. It seemed tied in a knot but only for a short time. The position was too uncomfortable to be maintained and the horse arose without assistance. Many similar accidents have happened during the week.

SIX LITTLE CHILDREN

Sent to the Infirmary Because of the Cold.

WILL BE PLACED IN TWO HOMES

Four Are to Be Returned to Licking County and the Others Will Become Charges of This County at Canal Dover.

The cold weather caused an increase in the population of the infirmary in the form of six children who were taken there by Superintendent Lennon. They will be sent to children's homes next week.

Four children were found in the Phillips family at Henrytown on the canal, the youngest being three years old. They were in destitute circumstances, the mother was ill with typhoid fever and the father could do nothing for the helpless little ones. The condition of the family was such as to excite pity, and as soon as the poor authorities learned of it they had the children taken to the infirmary where they will be cared for until next week when they will be removed to the Licking county Children's home. They had been there but were taken away some time ago by their parents who then moved to Henrytown.

The others are the children of Mrs. Tubbs who is employed at the Mecca. They were taken to the infirmary by Superintendent Lennon in order that they might be prepared for removal to the Tuscarawas home at Canal Dover.

It is believed three other children will be received at the infirmary within the next few days. The authorities are investigating the charge that a man living on the hill has deserted his family, leaving them without food. If this can be substantiated they will be taken in charge and efforts made to find and prosecute the fellow

COLDEST OF THE WEEK.

Friday Night Was a Time of Trial For Some People.

The man who had not taken precautions to guard against the cold had troubles Friday night for it was the coldest night of the week, and that means 15 degrees below zero. Thermometers in all parts of the city registered 12 below at 7 o'clock this morning, and the rise before noon was slow although the sun had some influence.

The weather bureau at last promises relief, the prediction for tomorrow being fair with rising temperature. That means it may be warmer, but not necessarily warm.

ICE HARVEST NEXT WEEK.

Preparations Being Made To Gather a Good Crop.

The continued cold weather has produced a fine grade of ice in the basins and the harvest will begin early next week. Workmen are preparing the ice houses for the reception of the crop and the elevators and engines are being placed in readiness for the work. The ice is first class and a large amount will be stored.

REAR END COLLISION

Piled Cars on the Pan Handle Tracks Near Isleta Friday.

A rear end collision at Isleta Friday delayed traffic on the Pan Handle for several hours. A slow freight had taken siding to allow No 8 to pass, and was pulling out when the caboose was struck by the nigger local. The wreck was a bad one, the cars being piled up and blocking both main tracks and the siding.

The Dennison wreck crew was called to the scene and the side track was soon cleared so that trains could pass by running carefully. The main tracks remained blocked for several hours longer. Passenger trains were held at Dennison, and traffic was completely blocked for a time.

—The mad dog scare is still on in Linton township, and all dogs must be confined for a period of 30 days. Dogs are not seen on the roads in Linton these cold days.

PRETTY WINDOWS.

Attractive Displays in Main Street Business Houses.

Coshocton business men have more attractive show windows this year than ever and the business section is a pretty place when the lights are shining or during the day.

The Crawford store has a pretty snow scene in which a windmill built of handkerchiefs is a prominent feature. The sails revolve with the steady motion that shows the work of the great building. Exceptional good taste is shown in the arrangement, and the window has attracted general attention as an advertisement for the handkerchief sale.

Hack & Wizenburg have a pretty display and the people never tire of looking into the long windows, while the Boston shows its regular line tastefully displayed.

Good taste is seen at the Ransom store where the windows are very pretty, and Burns & Gosser have a splendid display of handsome jewelry and other Christmas presents. The arrangements are artistic and well worth a long look.

At the Fountain the usual good taste is displayed and much attention is attracted to the pretty arrangement, while the Brendel shoe store presents a pretty appearance. White and gold in an arrangement that is to say the least artistic cause many persons to stop and express their admiration. Mr. Brendel who is always up to the hour displays in the west window the number of the coming year, meaning that shoes there displayed are for that time.

Walker & Cantwell are not behind in window decoration, and have an attractive feature intended to assure the wearer of their shoes that more pleasure is to be found in them than in the music of a harp.

And so it goes the length of the street. The grocery stores have attractions while the toy stores and book stores have a great many attractive features. Hay's, Anderson's Shaw's and the Syndicate show many pretty things. If the Coshocton shoppers will scan the windows of local stores they will have no thought of buying in some other town.

Many of these beauties have been hidden from the public by frost, but the chances are in favor of better weather next week when all may be seen.

THE CHILDREN'S DAY

Will Be Observed by Churches of the City.

GOOD PROGRAMS AND TREATS

Promises For The Entertainments That Will Mark The Sunday School Observance of Christmas.

Preparations are being made in all the churches of the city to entertain the Sunday school children during the holidays. Elaborate programs have been arranged.

There will be no treat at Grace M. E. church, but Sunday will be given over to Christmas. The morning service will be of unusual interest because Rev. Dr. Toland will preach a Christmas sermon and the choir will render Christmas music. In the evening a Christmas program will be rendered. Every number will be well worth hearing, and a cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Rev. Mr. Hamilton will preach in the Presbyterian church on the "Star of Bethlehem," and the choir will render Christmas music. The regular choir will be assisted by Dr Frank Wernett on the violin and the church chorus. On Christmas evening the Sunday school children will be given their treat and a program will be passed through. Great preparations have been made for the entertainment and a large audience is expected.

There may be a Santa Claus at the Baptist church Christmas eve, although that has not been decided, but there will be a good program and a treat for the Sunday school. Some special features that have not been made known will interest the audience, particularly the children. Sunday will be given over to Christmas services of which special music will be a feature.

The Walnut street Methodist Protestant church will not have its Christmas entertainment until New Year's evening, when a carefully prepared program will be rendered and the Sunday school children and their friends will spend a pleasant evening. Rev. Dr. Fisher is much attached to children and desires that they have every enjoyment possible from this particular season of the year.

Rev. Mr. Weber has arranged with the officers of the English Lutheran congregation to have the treat and entertainment one week from Sunday morning. The fact that services are being held in the opera house prevents elaborate arrangements but a good entertainment is promised.

Cecil Memorial church will observe the holiday season Christmas eve and a jolly time the children anticipate. All the arrangements have been made and Sunday school, congregation and visitors are expected to enjoy the occasion.

ELECTRIC FANS

Clear Windows of Ice and Are Greeted With Delight.

Some one has discovered that an electric fan in a show window will clear it of ice, and the experiment has been tried with success by Burns & Gosser. The fan was placed in the window during the cold hours of Friday, and soon after it began its merry song the ice had gone and the window was clear. The plan has been tried successfully in a number of other places, and dealers are selling them as a window necessity.

Follow the crowd. They are all bound for Christmas goods at Shaw's Bargain House. 20-3t

Governor Taft On Conditions In the Philippines.

SAILS, BUT PROMISES TO RETURN.

Italian Senate Discusses the Recent Lynchings of Subjects In the United States—Sale of the Danish West Indies—Other Insular and Foreign Happenings.

Manila Dec 21—Governor Taft, before embarking for the United States, was tendered a farewell reception by [illegible] members of the Federal party. The governor addressing the visitors, said the Federal party had done so much toward bringing about peace and giving the country a stable party that it augured more for the success of American labors than anything else during the recent critical times. The reports circulated in the United States founded on incidents connected with the war in Batangas province and the island of Samar, the governor said tend to convey a wrong impression of the situation, which is really hopeful. In concluding the governor said he would return here. He liked the Filipinos and regretted leaving at this particular time. But it was a comfort to know that the duties of the office were in the hands of Vice Governor Wright an able lawyer, who sympathized deeply with the best hopes of the people. In conclusion, the governor said he expected to be back before May and he hoped to have the pleasure of presenting the Federal party's memorial to the president. Civil government will be restored to the island of Cebu on Jan. 1 of the coming year.

Rosebery as Leader.

London, Dec 21. — The weekly reviews indorse Lord Rosebery's Chesterfield speech with singular unanimity. But the ironclad Liberal Speaker proves the exception of this. The Speaker indignantly repudiates the suggestion that any one is capable of replacing Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman in the leadership of the party. The Spectator, The Outlook and The Staurday Review, while differing slightly in discussing Lord Rosebery's pronouncement from their varying political standpoints, agree that he has struck one clear note amid the discord of the opposition. A point upon which each of these reviews strongly insist is that in order to become an effective leader Lord Rosebery must leave the easy seclusion of his library, face the disagreeable features of a campaign and wrest the leadership from its present holders.

Italy and Lynchings.

Rome, Dec. 21.—In the senate Baron Fava, formerly Italian ambassador at Washington, raised the question of lynchings in the United States, in which there had been a repetition of grave events, he said, and where the guilty persons had not been discovered Baron Fava referred to the suggestion of the late President McKinley after the lynching at Erwin, Miss., respecting legislation for the protection of foreigners Signor Prinetti, minister of foreign affairs said the Italian government would continue to protest in the hope of obtaining satisfaction against a state of affairs which constituted an offense against international treaties His government had asked of the United States protection for its citizens and not indemnities, as the price of their blood

KILLED TWO MEN

Hard Day For the Engineer of Pan Handle Train Seven.

The engineer of Pan Handle train seven was shocked Friday by two accidents in each of which a man was killed. His train struck a section man near Unionport, east of Dennison, and instantly killed him. When the train reached Franklin the engine struck Mailcarrier Hummer, inflicting injuries from which he died in the evening. It is not often an engineer is followed by luck of this kind.

This I know from results I obtained in my own case."
